The Framework Agreement for Mobile Content and Payment Services version 5.1 of 13. April 2011 has been updated to version 5.2 with the following amendments:

Following a constructive meeting between the Parties behind the Framework Agreement and several content providers held on June 1st 2011, the Parties has updated Framework Agreement for Mobile Content and Payment Services version 5.1 to version 5.2 with the following amendments:

1) Penalty for defining "Diverse" as Service Category for the Majority of the Services calculated per Contract Party

The parties behind the Framework Agreement has bilaterally committed themselves to the Consumer Ombudsman, "to give the customer an easy and cost-free access to receive information about in which of the 13 listed below service categories, the invoiced services belong." Therefore the parties have introduced fines for incomplete service categorisation so that the category "Diverse" is not specified by service category for the majority of digital services. See section 4.7.3.

2) Amended Penalty for lack of information about "+ usage charge"

The lack of information about "+ usage charge" now imposes a fine of DKK 500.

Previously, the penalty was DKK 3,000.

- DKK 500 for lack of information about "+ usage charge"
 - DKK 3,000 for other minor offenses and
 - DKK 6,000 for major violations
- See section 4.7.1

3) Maximum Amount for total Purchases per Service aimed at Children and young People

By November 1st, 2011, a maximum amount of DKK 250 per month for total purchase per service aimed at children and young people is introduced – regardless of service type. See section 12: Maximum Amounts.

4) Maximum Amounts for Services, where a Collection service is combined with a Competition

If a collection is combined with a competition with collection being the purpose, the total premium rated amount can be up to DKK 150 per service per telephone number per day. Each transaction must not exceed DKK 25. This amendment means that the marketing of such a service is no more limited to nationwide radio or television. See section 12 Maximum Amount

5) Requirements for Continuous Subscription Services for DKK 0, which after a trial lead to Premium Rated Billing

Continuous subscription services for DKK 0, which eventually lead to charging, shall meet the usual requirements for the purchase of any mobile content and payment service. It should be noted that at the transition to charging, the end-user has to give an active consent prior to accepting the purchase. See section 16.1.2.3.

6) Clarification of the "required information on TV"

A clarification of the information required when marketing a service on TV has been made. The actual service type must still be disclosed in connection with the broadcast, but the amendment states that this information does not need to shown on the screen. See Section 14.2.3.1

The Framework Agreement for Mobile Content and Payment Services version 5.0 of 1. May 2010 has been updated to version 5.1 with the following amendments:

General changes and clarifications

- Under Section 7 "Responsibility for the content and advertising of services", a clarification has been made: "Attention is drawn to services aimed at children and adolescents (under 18). The total amount for the purchase of this service shall not exceed what children and young people are expected to possess." The intention is to ensure better protection of children and adolescents.
- Under "About" in the right column, we have introduced an "Archive", where the former official versions of the Framework Agreement for Mobile Content and Payment exist.
- Under "About" you find all of the "Quarterly Reports to the Consumer Ombudsman."
- It is now possible to print each web page of the Framework Agreement for Mobile Content and Payment Services.

Other changes

- In section 14.2.3.2. regarding information requirements for the donation services in the radio, it has been clarified that "When marketing donation services on the radio, the provider's address and phone number can be omitted if the organization has been approved. However, the provider's name, address and telephone number must appear in the return SMS." One example is shown in section 17, "Examples" section 2AA
- Section 14.2.3.2. regarding information requirements on the radio:
The sentence "If the service is offered by anyone other than the channel provider itself, the name of the service provider must be notified orally, for example Lalandia" has now been expanded with the following sentence: " .. Regardless of service type, the provider's name in this case must be given orally, while all other mandatory provider data as specified in section 14.1.1 must be provided in all written communication intended for the end user."
- Examples of single and subscription type services at 0 DKK have been inserted in section 17 "Examples"
- A clarification that continuous subscription type services must not be offered to minors has been made in section 8 under 16.1.2 as follows: "Services intended for children and adolescents (under 18 years) must not be offered as continuous subscription type services."
- Cancellation of continuous subscription type services is now exempted from section 16.1.1 6) as follows:
"6) The end user must be able to unsubscribe from the service on the same medium and with the same ergonomics as when the registration is done. Exemption from this rule is continuous subscription-type services, where the cancellation must take place as described in Section 16.1.2 10)."

• Network Operators and gateway providers have developed common standards for handling situations where one MSISDN is transferred to a new customer. It is now required that any charging of subscription-type services and any subscriptions related to the former client shall automatically cease prior to further transfer of the MSISDN. This requirement applies to both former customers with prepaid cards and subscription customers. Effective: 1 June 2011

3.1. Prior to purchase

Information about the right of withdrawal shall be provided prior to each purchase. If the end user chooses to exercise his/her right of withdrawal, the end user is not required to pay for the product or service provided.

In principle, the customer has a 14-day right of withdrawal.

However, as a content provider, you may choose a:

- 14-day right of withdrawal
In principle, the customer has a 14-day right of withdrawal. The period starts on the day on which the agreement was concluded.
- Waiver of right of withdrawal
With the active agreement of the customer, the right of withdrawal may be waived.

No information about the right of withdrawal

If no information or inadequate information is provided, the customer's right of withdrawal is extended by up to three months.

3.2. After purchase

If, when purchasing subscription-type services, the customer has actively agreed to waive the right of withdrawal, the end user shall be informed thereabout.

3.3 Exceptions

A number of agreements are excepted from the provisions relating to the right of withdrawal. Examples include:

- Vending machine purchases, e.g. drinks, bought from a vending machine
- Charitable appeals
- Transport, e.g. removals and trips by air, bus, rail, taxi, etc.
- Accommodation, e.g. stays in hotels, hostels or camp sites, cottage rentals
- Food, e.g. restaurant visits and take-away deliveries (catering)
- Recreational leisure activities, e.g. cinema visits, theatre performances, concerts, sporting events, etc.

3.4. What the right of withdrawal means in practice

3.4.1 How does the customer withdraw?

Before the end of the cooling-off period, the customer must notify the provider that the customer is withdrawing from the Agreement. If the customer wants to provide notification in writing – for example by letter or e-mail – the customer simply sends the notification before the end of the period. To prove that the customer has withdrawn from the agreement in time, the customer can send the letter by registered post and keep the proof of posting.

Notification that the customer is withdrawing from the Agreement must be sent to the relevant content provider.

The fact that the provider has delivered the service in full or in part does not affect the customer's right of withdrawal unless the customer expressly agrees that the service could be provided at a specified time before expiry of the right of withdrawal. In such cases the right of withdrawal only applies until this time.

The following shall apply to subscription-type services:

In this case, the right of withdrawal shall apply from the date on which the customer receives confirmation on a durable medium. For example if the customer orders a service on Monday 1st and receives the above information at the same time, the cooling-off period runs until Monday 15th. If the customer does not receive the information until later, for example Wednesday 3rd, the cooling-off period runs until Wednesday 17th. If the period expires on a public holiday, a Saturday, Danish Constitution Day (5 June), 24 December or the 31 December, the customer may wait until the following working day.

For goods and services delivered outside the telephone:

In this case, the right of withdrawal shall apply from the date on which the goods are delivered to the customer.

[Additional text may be added, for example:

"After exercising the right of withdrawal, it is unlawful to use or transfer the purchased services and any breach is an offence."]

Supervision and sanctions

Supervision and sanctions

The Parties to this Framework Agreement undertake the following:

- 1) to have an agreement with a separate unit, which is independent of the Operator's financial interests and day-to-day running, to perform ongoing random samplings to ensure that the premium services provided over the Operator's network comply with the relevant legislation and the Framework Agreement, in such a way that the checks meet the requirements below,
- 2) to ensure that the Framework Agreement and the legislation in general is adhered to by the Parties, including content providers, with which the Operator enters into agreements relating to the usage rights for application code used in the advertising or offering of premium services,
- 3) to ensure that the Parties with which the Operator enters into agreements relating to the usage rights for application code require that such agreements, in the event of transfer of such usage rights for application code, stipulate that the Party in question must adhere to the Framework Agreement and the legislation in general,
- 4) to review its own operations to ensure that a premium service adheres to the Framework Agreement and the legislation in general, on its own initiative where there is a particular reason for doing so or following an approach by end users or others.

4.1. Purpose of supervision

The purpose of appointing an impartial unit is to carry out a specified number of random samplings of all mobile content services offered on the Danish market, and to investigate whether the random samplings adhere to the applicable legislation and the Framework Agreement for mobile content and payment services in force from time to time.

The impartial unit shall investigate a representative percentage of the services offered calculated based on the number of errors in the most recent six-month period, on the basis of 125 random samplings per quarter.

The random samplings shall be distributed as follows: 1/3 new services and 2/3 existing services. New services are defined as services that have not been investigated before.

The random samplings shall cover the entire offering of mobile content services, such that all the various forms of mobile content services are checked and the various forms of advertising media and providers are checked.

In other words, the random samplings shall include all types of premium services, including the Operator's own services, and they shall cover services advertised in all forms of media including Internet, TV and print, concentrating particularly on high-visibility services. In addition, services shall be checked if there is a particular reason to doubt the actual content of the service.

Certain random samplings are carried out outside normal office hours, including random samplings of competitions, etc. linked to TV broadcasts.

The majority of the random samplings shall be carried out with regard to the following points in the Framework Agreement:

- Adult content
- Maximum amounts
- Content provisions

The impartial unit shall carry out retests of services depending on any identified breaches of the Framework Agreement and the applicable legislation. As a rule, retests shall take place about one week after the breach is notified to the Operators.

As a rule, the impartial unit shall retest all services found to be non-compliant as well as services of the same type provided by the same content provider on the same platform and advertised in the same medium.

4.2 Documentation and reporting

The impartial unit shall ensure that the random samplings and documentation are uniform and consistent, and, for each random sampling, shall provide a substantiated assessment of the degree of compliance of the service with the relevant legislation and the Framework Agreement.

The impartial unit may obtain all relevant charging data and similar significant information at short notice from the agreed points of contact of all the Operators. The Operators shall provide such information without undue delay.

If the impartial unit identifies any breaches of the legislation or material provisions of the Framework Agreement, it shall immediately notify the Operators. Such notification shall contain a unique identification of the service and the random sampling, relevant documentation (e.g. advertising material and charging data) and a substantiated assessment of the service's breach of the legislation and the Framework Agreement. The notification shall be sent by e-mail or fax.

The impartial unit shall report to the Operators in writing every quarter. The quarterly report shall contain an overview of all random samplings carried out, details of compliance with the legislation and the Framework Agreement, and, if applicable, those areas in which the regulations have been breached.

4.3 The Operators' obligations relating to the Danish Consumer Ombudsman (Forbrugerombudsmanden) and reporting

On the basis of the impartial unit's quarterly report, the Operators shall prepare their own quarterly report, adding details of the investigations into premium services that they have carried out themselves. The report shall also contain the steps taken by the Operator where breaches were identified. The report shall be sent to the Danish Consumer Ombudsman (Forbrugerombudsmanden), who may release the details to the public.

4.4 Major breaches of the Framework Agreement

The following three types of breach shall always be regarded as major breaches:

- 1) Services with adult content, as described in this Agreement with the exception of erotic content, if offered through the 16 series in accordance with the relevant rules.
- 2) Breach of maximum amounts as follows
 - a) Breach of any maximum amounts in the Framework Agreement (DKK 12/75/150/200/225)
 - b) Inadequate price information
 - c) Premium rated charging of received chat messages

d) Premium rated charging of service notices

e) Inadequate termination procedure for subscription services subject to separate premium charging

3) Inadequate correction or blocking of an identified breach within the period specified by the Operator, regardless of whether the breach is major or minor.

4.5 Sanctions for major breaches

The Operators in the Framework Agreement shall apply the following sanctions if the Framework Agreement is breached.

If the content provider has committed a major breach, the Operator shall immediately suspend access to its mobile network for the services of the content provider.

If the content provider has transferred the right of use of the application code to a third party, who committed the breach, the content provider is required to suspend access for the services of the party in question. The Operator shall be informed in writing. If the content provider fails in this obligation, the Operator may suspend access for the content provider's codes.

Access to the service is restored when the Operator has been shown evidence that the relevant breach has ended.

If the same content provider commits a breach of the same kind, i.e. the same type of breach, within 12 months, the Operator shall immediately suspend access to the content provider's service. If the content provider has transferred the right of use to a third party, who committed the breach, the content provider shall suspend access for such third party. The Operator shall be informed in writing. If the content provider fails in this obligation, the Operator may suspend access for the content provider's codes.

Following such repeated breaches, access to the service shall not be restored until at least 30 days have passed since the date of suspension.

The Operator and the content provider shall ensure by means of their agreement that the services that are advertised in breach of the Framework Agreement are suspended. Sanctions shall be applied to those who advertise the service and declare names and addresses in accordance with the Danish Consumer Contracts Act (forbrugeraftaleloven).

If two business units within the same group of companies each separately advertise a service in the unit's own name and each separately commit two serious breaches, and the type of breach is the same in both units, the Operator shall require its contracting party to suspend the entire service offering from the group of companies for 30 days.

Details of the scope and the period of the suspension shall in all cases be passed to the other Operators and may be published on www.rammeaftalen.dk.

4.6 Minor breaches

Minor breaches are clear and simple breaches of applicable rules.

The following types of breach shall always be regarded as minor breaches:

- 1) Inadequate information – for example the name, address and telephone number of the content provider
- 2) Inadequate information on a durable medium
- 3) Inadequate information about the right of withdrawal

Inadequate correction of a minor breach shall be regarded as a major breach.

4.7 Penalties

4.7.1 Penalties based on service

For each breach of the Framework Agreement identified in a random sampling, a penalty shall be imposed upon the relevant content provider by the Party to the Framework Agreement in whose telephones the random sampling took place.

- DKK 500 for lack of information about "+ usage charge"
- DKK 3,000 for minor breaches
- DKK 6,000 for major breaches

All prices are excluding VAT.

The penalty shall be collected by the Party to the Framework Agreement in whose telephones the random sampling took place.

4.7.2 Penalties based on contracting party

An error rate is calculated on the basis of the total number of breaches by the contracting parties of each Operator, indicating the number of services with errors in relation to the number of services tested by the impartial unit. The error rate is fixed for the following six months at a time. At present, the maximum error rate is 50 per cent of the total number of services tested per contracting party.

The parties submit monthly statements to each contracting party. The statements show the random samplings regarding the contracting party in question conducted by the independent entity

If the error rate is exceeded for a three-month period, the contracting party shall be liable for a penalty of DKK 3,000 for each of the contracting party's services that are tested in that period. If the minimum 10 services have not been tested in the relevant quarter, the process shall wait until at least 10 services have been tested, after which the error rate is calculated for the period as a whole.

Penalties applied under this point shall be used to promote the content and payment market in Denmark, for example for educational activities. The Parties to the Framework Agreement shall decide in detail how the funds are to be used.

Collections as described in 4.7.2. shall be carried out and paid into an account for the stated purpose.

4.7.3 Penalty for defining "Diverse" as Service Category for the Majority of the Services calculated per Contract Party

The parties behind the Framework Agreement has bilaterally committed themselves to the Consumer Ombudsman, "to give the customer an easy and cost-free access to receive information about in which of the 13 listed below service categories, the invoiced services belong." Therefore the parties have introduced fines for incomplete service categorisation so that the category "Diverse" is not specified by service category for the majority of digital services.

Period	Percentage share of correct categorization per contract party	Fine
1.Sept. 2011- 31. Oct. 2011	Minimum 50%	DKK 1000
1.Nov. 2011 – 31.Dec. 2011	25%	DKK 2000
1.Jan. 2012 – 29.Febr. 2012	Minimum 10%	DKK 3000

Customer service

The customer shall receive high-quality, relevant customer service for each enquiry and shall not be transferred from one party to another unless there is a particular reason for doing so. Transfers from telephone companies to service providers may only take place at the time of initial enquiry about the advertising and content of the service.

The end user's mobile company is required to handle customer enquiries. Enquiries relating to registration and billing for content services (billing and account issues on which the mobile company may be assumed to have an influence) shall be handled by the mobile company.

Enquiries relating to advertising, the agreement, the delivery and the actual content of the content service may be referred by the mobile company directly to the content provider, the end user having been informed that he/she may contact the mobile company again in the event that the content provider does not provide a satisfactory response to the enquiry.

In its agreement with the content provider, the mobile operator shall require the content provider to handle customer enquiries. Enquiries relating to advertising, the agreement, the delivery and the actual content of the content service shall be handled by the content provider. Enquiries relating to registration and billing for content service (billing and account issues on which the mobile company may be assumed to have an influence) may be referred by the content provider directly to the end user's mobile company.

The content provider shall offer customer service as follows:

- By telephone
- In Danish
- On a Danish telephone number
- Open and staffed at least four hours a day on weekdays.

The mobile operator shall further require the content provider to make the necessary data and resources available to the mobile operator.

The mobile company is required to suspend collection of a disputed amount in the period from receipt by the mobile company of a written complaint until the mobile company has notified the customer of its decision in writing. This shall apply regardless of whether the complaint relates to deliverables provided by the mobile company or the content provider.

The mobile operator is required to enter into any agreements necessary in order to implement the above provisions with the relevant parties, including providers of network services, where the mobile operator is not the customer's mobile company, and service providers.

6. Application codes

The operator to which the application code has been assigned may enter into an agreement with a content provider relating to the right to use the relevant application code on the Operator's network. In the agreement on the right to use the application code the Operator may require that the application code is made available for use by end users on the mobile network of one of the Parties within a specific period. The Operator shall not make the conclusion of an agreement on the right to use an application code dependent upon the simultaneous conclusion of an agreement on the supply of other services, including an agreement on the product name and the use of the application code on the Operator's network.

Other Parties undertake not to use or enter into an agreement on the use of the same application code with content providers other than the content provider having entered into a usage agreement with the Operator to which the application code was assigned.

Where the content provider wishes to be able to use the application code in the networks of one or more of the other Parties, the content provider shall enter into a separate agreement with each of the Operators.

The Parties undertake to enter into an agreement on the right to use an application code, or an agreement on the use of a product name and the associated price point, under terms that adhere to the provisions in this Agreement.

Responsibility for the content and advertising of services

When advertising and selling premium services and products, the content provider is responsible for adhering to the applicable legislation, including the Danish Marketing Practices Act (Markedsføringsloven) and the Danish Consumer Contracts Act (Forbrugeraftaleloven), in particular the obligations arising out of the provisions on distance selling in the Danish Consumer Contracts Act (Forbrugeraftaleloven). Reference is also made to the Danish Consumer Ombudsman's currently applicable Guidelines on Children, Young People and Marketing Practices (Forbrugerombudsmandens vejledning om Børn, Unge og Markedsføring).

The Operator is required to ensure that the content providers with which the Operator enters into agreements are aware of the requirements arising out of the Framework Agreement in force from time to time.

It should be noted in particular that when advertising services or engaging in any other form of communication relating to the services, the content provider shall quote the price for using the service (premium rated charging), and shall specify that the end user is also required to pay the Operator's end user price for traffic relating to use of the service.

Attention is drawn to services aimed at children and adolescents (under 18). The total amount for the purchase of this service shall not exceed what children and young people are expected to possess

A party to the Agreement may offer additional price points, subject to the applicable maximum amounts. (See "Maximum amounts").

The amount charged shall be identical to the advertised amount, i.e. the advertised amount shall not be split into more than one charge.

Breach by service provider

The Operator is entitled, on its own initiative or following an approach by end users or others, to review a premium service in order to investigate whether the content provider is complying with the conditions governing provision of the service. Reviews of the relevant service shall not be chargeable to the content provider. Where an Operator finds that a content provider is not complying with the conditions set out in this Agreement for premium services, the Operator is required to inform the other Parties.

Any disregard of the conditions in this Framework Agreement or any breach of the applicable legislation by the content provider in providing premium services and products, including failure to observe the rules relating to distance selling in the Danish Consumer Contracts Act (Forbrugeraftaleloven), shall be regarded as a major breach, entitling the Operator to cancel the Agreement without further notice and to terminate access to the content provider's services and products.

Intellectual property rights

The content provider is required to ensure that the necessary basis for calculating copyright-related fees exists, including KODA fees, and is responsible for ensuring that such fees are paid.

Advice

If the content provider is launching/offering new services, including new combination services not described in this Agreement, the Operator may in certain cases provide guidance with regard to the compliance of the intended service with the Framework Agreement, in response to the content provider's specific enquiry. The Operator's guidance shall be provided on a voluntary basis and the content provider may not assert any claims against the Operator in respect of errors or omissions in such guidance.

The operators will not give advice on the general law of advertising or other legal issues, but will refer to the possibility of advance notice from the Danish Consumer Ombudsman (Forbrugerombudsmanden) or private advice.

The parties behind the Framework Agreement has bilaterally committed themselves to the Consumer Ombudsman, "to give the customer an easy and cost-free access to receive information about in which of the 13 listed below service categories, the invoiced services belong." Therefore the parties have introduced fines for incomplete service categorisation so that the category "Diverse" is not specified by service category for the majority of digital services. See section 4.7.3.

13.2. Charging time

Charging for goods and services shall not take place until delivery has started, regardless of the medium.

- In the case of streaming services, charging may be carried out when streaming has started.
- Services consisting of the sending of passwords for later use. In this case, the earliest charging time is when the password is sent.
- Subscription-based services in which charging takes place before delivery may be charged when the confirmation of the purchase is sent.

For subscription-type services: Total price (and individual price where relevant) "+trafiktakst" ("usage charge"). In the case of subscription-type services, it shall also be made clear that the service is a subscription, and the font size requirement is the same as for other mandatory information (see below).

14.2 Special cases

In a number of cases, certain pre-purchase information requirements may be met by providing references to another place in the same medium.

References are permitted for the following information types:

- About the 14-day right of withdrawal
- Name, address and telephone number
- Any termination procedure for subscription-type services

Any reference shall be directly related to the service offering.

14.2.1 Digital media (Internet and WAP) via link

In the case of Internet-based services and other services not provided via a non-durable medium, the end user shall not be placed under time pressure during the purchase and before the purchase is carried out. This could be a reduction in the time available to the customer to decide whether to purchase, for example by adding a timer function instructing the end user to press OK before the counter reaches 0.

The reference shall be via a link to the same medium, i.e. web sites shall use web links and WAP shall use WAP links. The reference shall always include information about the 14-day right of withdrawal, e.g. "Se om 14 dages fortrydelsesret og andre informationer på www..." ("For details of the 14-day right of withdrawal and other information go to www...")

14.2.2 Printed media (for example newspapers, weeklies or monthlies, coupon books) in the publication notes

The reference shall be to publication notes in the same printed medium. The reference shall always include information about the 14-day right of withdrawal, e.g. "Se om 14 dages fortrydelsesret og andre informationer på side..." ("For details of the 14-day right of withdrawal and other information see page...") Any reference shall be directly related to the service offering.

14.2.3 Non-durable media (radio, TV)

14.2.3.1 TV

All required information must be specified in any marketing of a premium rate service content.

The following required information is defined as mandatory text, and shall be displayed as text on the screen, horizontally and the font size of at least 5% (1/20) of the screen height. Font size is measured as the height of uppercase characters, e.g. M or X, of the font being used in relation to that part of the screen that is text-safe.

The required information contains the following:

- Price,
- Provider's identity (if not the channel itself).
- right of withdrawal, (to be referred to by a short readable www – address)

The following required information can also be disclosed in connection with the broadcasting:

- Service type (for example it can be stated orally during the broadcast that the service is a SMS voting, SMS competition or SMS collection, etc.)

If the service is a subscription service, the mandatory text also includes:

- Subscription

If the service is a continuous service meaning that the service continues until it is canceled, the mandatory text also includes:

- Cancellation procedure

Text shall appear on the screen for at least two seconds, plus an additional 0.2 seconds per word. For example text containing 12 words (e.g. "sms til 1xxx for at deltage i afstemningen. xx kroner udover trafiktakst") ("Text 1xxx to vote in the poll. DKK xx plus usage charge") is 12 words, equivalent to minimum $2.0+12 \times 0.2=4.4$ seconds) shall remain on screen for at least 4.4 seconds.

The calculation is not just based on the mandatory text itself – if there is other text on screen at the same time as the mandatory text, the other text shall also be included in the calculation. For example, product names, model numbers and anything else on the same screen are included. For additional guidance, the text shall remain on screen long enough for it to be read out loud at normal speaking rate.

If a service is advertised on TV verbally and is referred to on TV, the price of the service shall be mentioned and if the service is a subscription-based service, this fact shall also be mentioned clearly.

In the case of live TV an exception may be made, on request, from the time requirement above. This requires prior approval by the Operators, who need a processing time of at least 10 working days. Requests may be sent to the points of contact on their web site.

14.2.3.2 Radio

If the service not is provided by the channel operator itself, the content provider's name shall be mentioned verbally, e.g. Latandia. Regardless of service type, the provider's name in this case must be given orally, while all other mandatory provider data as specified in section 14.1.1 must be provided in all written communication intended for the end user.

In the case of competitions or polls held during the programme with a premium charge up to and including DKK 5:

- If the end user retains the 14-day right of withdrawal: NO requirement for information about the right of withdrawal.
- If the customer has to waive the right of withdrawal: SPEAK: For example "Ved deltagelse fraskrives 14 dages fortrydelsesret" ("By taking part you give up your 14-day right of withdrawal"). (Note that "Ingen fortrydelsesret" ("No right of withdrawal") is not adequate.)

In the case of competitions or polls held during the programme with a premium charge over DKK 5:

- If the end user retains the 14-day right of withdrawal: SPEAK: "Du har 14 dages fortrydelsesret" ("You have a 14-day right of withdrawal"). Within 24 hours direct information must be sent to the end user explaining how to exercise the right of withdrawal: "Tak for deltagelse i Den hemmelige lyd. ("Thanks for taking part in the "Secret Sound" promotion.) Du kan indenfor 14 dage fortryde købet ved at skrive til (You can cancel your purchase within 14 days by writing to) Den Grønne Slagter Aps, Bogholderivej 14, DK-2100, +4545454637".
- If the customer has to waive the right of withdrawal: SPEAK: For example "Ved deltagelse fraskrives 14 dages fortrydelsesret" ("By taking part you give up your 14-day right of withdrawal"). (Note that "Ingen fortrydelsesret" ("No right of withdrawal") is not adequate.)

When marketing donation services on the radio, the provider's address and phone number can be omitted if the organization has been approved. However, the provider's name, address and telephone number must appear in the return SMS.

14.2.4 Goods and services delivered outside the telephone:

For this service type, the invoicing method shall be stated, for example "faktureres via mobilregningen" ("billed via your mobile account").

15.3 Competitions

Competitions may not be offered as continuous subscription-type services.

The total cost of taking part in the competition, and details of the individual premium charges, must be made clear before the competition starts.

Special service types

16.1 Subscription-type services

The following applies to premium rated services requiring the sending or receiving of a number of premium messages, including subscriptions, chat, games and competitions.

When providing premium rated services requiring the sending or receiving of a number of premium messages, including subscriptions, chat, games and competitions, the Parties are required to ensure that content providers design the service such that the end user has constant control over usage as follows:

16.1.1 The following general provisions apply to subscription-type services:

- 1) At the time of ordering, the total cost of using the services and the amount of any individual premium charges shall be clearly stated.
- 2) Each individual premium message shall include the termination code or information about the termination procedure (e.g. "Opsigelse: Send "SPORT STOP" til 1202" ("To unsubscribe: Send "SPORT STOP" to 1202")). The end user shall not be subject to further premium charging for receiving this information.
- 3) The service shall cease after the user sends a "STOP" message, cf. 2) above.
- 4) If all or part of the premium charging is applied separately for each mobile terminated or mobile originated message, the relevant price shall be clear from the notice text in each individual premium message terminated at the mobile (e.g. "4 kr.", "kr. 10", "50 øre").
- 5) Subscription-type services shall cease when the total agreed premium charging has been reached. Continuous subscription-type services are excluded from this, cf. below points 8 and 9.
- 6) The end user shall be able to cancel the service in the same medium and using the same procedure as for registering.
- 7) Special information requirements on a durable medium are applicable in respect of the sale of subscription-type services and all services exceeding DKK 75.
- 8) When the end user's customer relationship with an Operator ends, the Operator shall send notification to a content provider enquiring about the customer's status in respect of charging. On the basis of such notification, the content provider shall cancel the subscription-type service in question.

16.1.2 In addition, the following shall apply to continuous subscription-type services:

Services intended for children and adolescents (under 18 years) must not be offered as continuous subscription type services.

- 1) Subscription-type services may continue if the end user has accepted a continuous service. When each premium charge is made, the end user shall receive information about the price and how to terminate the service.
- 2) Continuous subscription-type services shall not be subject to a period of notice, which means that the customer shall be able to terminate with immediate effect.
- 3) Continuous subscription services for DKK 0, which eventually lead to charging, shall fulfill the usual requirements for the purchase of any mobile content and payment service. Section 16.1.2 gets into force by 1. July 2010

16.2 Chat

When providing premium rated services that can be characterised as chat, the parties are required to ensure that the content providers do not subject the end user to premium charging for chat messages received by the end user.

16.3 Hybrid services

In the case of services created from a number of different service types, the general rule shall be that the applicable rules are the rules providing the highest level of consumer protection. For example, if a service is a combination of a competition service and a charitable appeal service, the maximum amount shall be based on the rules for competitions, although the content provider is also allowed to run an charitable appeal.

16.4 Auctions

In principle, auction-type services that contain a large element of chance, for example reverse auctions, shall be covered by the rules for competitions.

However, auctions in which the result largely depends on personal preferences and knowledge of the market, for example English auctions and Dutch auctions, shall not generally be regarded as competitions.

16.5 Sponsored and zero-charged services

Services using application codes shall be covered by the Framework Agreement even if no premium rated charging takes place. In subscription-type services, every message shall state how to cancel the service.

16.6 TV and radio

Schedule-related content from public service radio and TV channels during normal transmission times can be offered to everyone, and the responsibility for this shall rest with the channel in question. Other radio and TV content may be covered by the content rules depending on the nature of the content.

Adult content

The code of practice sets out how service providers should interpret the limits the parties have agreed to impose in terms of the content/material that falls within or outside the 16XX series in terms of being of an erotic, sexual and pornographic nature. It is a matter for the individual operator to determine whether access is provided to content/material in the 16XX series, and to what extent. Within the 16XX series, there is a distinction between "erotic and sexual content/material" and "pornographic content/material". This means that a mobile operator may choose to provide access to content/material exclusively in the 12XX, 14XX, 18XX and 19XX series. An operator may also choose to provide access to the above series, plus that part of the 16XX series covering "erotic and sexual content/material", while barring access to "pornographic content/material". For details of the extent to which the individual operators allow access to content/material in the 16XX series, please refer to the operators in question.

12XX, 14XX, 18XX and 19XX

Access to content/material:

No age restriction.

Content/material in the form of images, text or sound belonging to the 16xx series must not be in the 12XX, 14XX, 18XX and 19XX series. Content/material in this category may contain images of lightly-clothed persons, but with the limitation that the persons must have their sexual organs covered, and women must also have their breasts covered. Persons wearing G-strings or transparent clothing are permitted provided that their sexual organs are not visible. Images of persons touching their own sexual organs and interaction of a sexual nature between two or more persons are not permitted. Drawings and caricatures of sexual organs/bottom pictures in a humorous context are permitted in this category.

Content/material in the form of text, for example erotic stories and sexual/erotic descriptions are permitted provided the texts do not describe acts and/or situations that are not permitted in images.

Content/material in the form of sound, for example ringtones and sound greetings are permitted provided the sounds do not relate to acts/situations that are not permitted in images.

Erotic and sexual content/material

Access to content/material:

Adults.

In this category, erotic/sexual relations between persons may be shown/indicated.

It includes content/material intended to have an erotic effect and content/material of a sexual nature.

Erotic content/material ranges from naked pictures/photographs of men/women, the naked model in Se & Hør magazine or the Page 9 Girl in Extra Bladet magazine, to one or more persons touching themselves and one or more persons who may be characterised as being naked, and one or more persons in positions intended to have an erotic effect.

Content/material of a sexual nature includes scenes of sexual relations/intercourse in which the sexual organs are not shown directly.

When the content/material is evaluated, importance will be placed on the overall impression, i.e. the combination of image, sound and animation.

Content/material may consist of text of a sexual and erotic nature and sound files with heavy breathing, and sexual and erotic undertones/overtones.

Pornographic content/material

Access to content/material:

Adults.

The individual operator may choose to provide full or partial access, or no access at all, to this type of content/material.

The content/material may only be provided if it is legal.

Pornographic content/material is defined as explicit sexual activity, close-ups of sexual organs and intercourse, frequently with a strongly sexual soundtrack. This category includes all types of sexual activity, with a highly variable number of participants. Distinctions may be drawn between different genres, for example:

- sadomasochism, bondage, domination, rubber, latex
- homosexuality, transvestism
- group sex

Blocked for physical goods and services	Unsubscribe service / subscription and stop billing.
Blocked due balance control limit is reached.	"Try again later"
Blocked due Consumption Control limit for content premium rate services are achieved	"Try again later"
